Aidan Hayward is an associate in the firm's civil litigation & insurance defense practice group. His practice focuses on representing employers and insurers in tort litigations in state and federal courts, including wrongful death claims, personal injury claims, and commercial vehicle accidents.

Prior to joining the firm, Aidan attended Washington University School of Law in St. Louis, where he served as a staff editor for Washington University Jurisprudence Review. During law school, Aidan won a brief award at a moot court competition. He also worked as a law clerk at Anheuser-Busch InBev, assisting in-house counsel on M&A, compliance, and employment law matters. Additionally, he gained experience working on federal habeas corpus cases in the Washington University Post-Conviction Relief Clinic.

Aidan lives in St. Louis, Missouri. He is an avid reader, chess and tennis player, and music enthusiast.
