Lauren Marciano always wanted to be a lawyer; it made sense for someone who had a favorite branch of the government from the time she was in grade school. She began her journey as a sustainability intern in her beloved hometown of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. After moving to Oklahoma and graduating from the University of Tulsa, College of Law, Lauren began her practice at an insurance defense firm in downtown Tulsa. Since 2015, she has acted as a civil litigator handling complex cases involving matters from products liability to transportation and everything in between.

Lauren specializes in leveraging her ability to home in on relatable key concepts in order to further her clients' best interest. She has defended Fortune 500 companies at trial as well as individuals and small businesses. Lauren excels at building rapport with clients, judges, and juries. From trial to the appellate process, Lauren has handled every phase of litigation. She has first and second chair trial experience. She also provides valuable mitigation strategies in order to minimize future litigation.

Lauren's achievements have earned her recognition on Oklahoma Super Lawyers' list of "Oklahoma Rising Stars". Lauren has also served as a Board Member for the Oklahoma Association of Defense Counsel, an organization to which she is greatly committed. Most recently, Lauren developed a webinar for transportation professionals for the Trucking Industry Defense Association (TIDA) which focused on major litigation developments in the southern U.S.A.

When Lauren isn't in the courtroom, you can find her listening to music, enjoying the outdoors, and spending time with her family. Lauren and her husband, Logan, spend time trying not to talk about the law and playing with their daughter and dogs. Lauren and Logan believe in the value of world experiences and are avid travelers.
